

Busy Week Starts Today For U. S. Outdoor Writers Convention In Escanaba

Fishing, archery, bait and fly casting exhibitions, boat rides, skiing, log rolling, sightseeing trips and many other activities are lined up for outdoor writers to enjoy and write about as they arrive this weekend for the national convention of the Outdoor Writers Association of America.

The convention opened this morning with registration of delegates at the House of Ludington headquarters and will continue until Saturday night, July 7. Nearly four hundred persons are expected to attend.

Outdoor scribes began filing their stories to their newspapers and radio stations yesterday and will continue to publicize Escanaba and the Upper Peninsula region the rest of the week.

OWAA Head Arrives
J. Hammond Brown, president of the OWAA, arrived late yesterday and made an immediate check-up of local plans for the convention program. He predicted it would be one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

Other officers of the OWAA are: Vice presidents, Jack Van Coevering, Detroit; Charles E. Gillham, Edwardsville, Ill.; Larry Cook, Cleveland; Tod Powell, San Francisco; treasurer, E. Budd Marter III, Beverly, N. J.; secretary, Michael Hudoba, Washington; assistant secretary, James W. Stuber, Dayton; and chairman of board of directors, Lou Klewer, Toledo, O.

Writers went on walleye pike, bass, brook and lake trout fishing trips today and will view outdoor movies on the lawn in front of the headquarters hotel tonight. Jack Rottier of Milwaukee, field representative of the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., will be in charge of the program.

Paul Bunyan Smorgasbord
Sunday also will be devoted to fishing and sightseeing trips. The outdoor scribes will be guests at a Paul Bunyan smorgasbord at 6 Sunday evening with the Michigan Department of Agriculture as host. The affair will be held on the lawn in front of headquarters.

For those who do not want to fish, there will be a variety of other entertainment. Both today and Sunday afternoons, Ben Hardesty of the Shakespeare company and Lou Caine of James Heddon & Sons, both well known casters, will give exhibitions of bait and fly casting on the municipal docks. Demonstrations in bow and arrow shooting will be given by Fred Bear of Grayling and Larry Whiffen of Milwaukee, both prominent figures in the archery world. The casting and archery exhibitions are open to the public.

The Fish and Wildlife Service lamprey research laboratory vessel and the U. S. Coast Guard's $10,000,000 cutter Mackinac will be tied up at the Escanaba municipal dock on Sunday and will be inspected by the writers and their families.

Reception Sunday Night
Welcoming ceremonies will be held at the Bonifas auditorium at 8:30 p. m., Sunday with Charles Burton of Gladstone delivering the address of welcome. Don Gillies, president of the Michigan Outdoor Writers association, which is meeting in Escanaba this weekend, will preside. President Brown of the OWAA will give a brief talk, and introduce Martin K. Bovey of Concord, Mass., who will show an outstanding program of outdoor movies.

Since the Bonifas auditorium will seat 700, there will be seating room for Escanaba citizens interested in conservation and other outdoor subjects.

Workshop sessions will start on Monday.

Group A, meeting at the House of Ludington, will discuss the question: "Farm-Hunter Relationships—Are they Sounding A Death Knell to Public Hunting?" Jack Van Coevering, outdoors editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be the moderator.

Group B will meet at the Delta hotel with Charles E. Gillham, noted writer of Arctic tales, as chairman.

Group C, meeting at the Sherman hotel, will hear a talk by Ernest C. Brooks, corrections commissioner of Lansing. Larry Cook of Cleveland will preside.

Water Skiing Monday
The writers will take a little time off from serious business to watch the water skiing exhibition by Tommy Bartlett's troupe on Bay de Noc at 1 and 7 p. m. Monday.

Groups A, B and C will resume their workshop sessions on Monday afternoon at 2.

Women writers and wives of OWAA members will be guests of the Michigan Outdoor Writers association at a tea to be held at

New York Cafe Shooting Fatal

NEW YORK—(AP)—A socialist insurance broker killed his estranged wife last night in an upper east side restaurant, seriously wounded a mutual friend, and then took his own life.

His shots spread panic among some 40 diners in the Schrafft's restaurant on Madison avenue, near 77th street. Many customers dived under tables during the shooting, others fled to the street.

The broker, John Wells, about 50, had invited his wife and the friend to the restaurant to discuss a reconciliation.

Wells, who has offices on Wall Street, is listed in the New York social register. So is his wife, the former Julia Walker Jones, about 45. Both descended from old colonial families.

The friend, J. W. Walsh, Jr., 66, also is in the social register. Police said the trio's dinner was marked by several violent arguments. Mrs. Wells was overheard to tell her husband at one point: "Nothing doing, I won't go back with you again."

Wells then left the restaurant but returned after a few minutes. He fired six shots, police said, hitting his wife and Walsh each twice.

The broker then darted out of the restaurant, ran several blocks to the brownstone building where he lived, and fired a bullet through his mouth, police said.

Thailand's Premier Kidnaped; Army And Navy Meet In Battle

By ALEX MACDONALD
BANGKOK, Thailand—(AP)—Thai navy and marine forces fought what appeared to be a losing battle today to set up a rebel government replacing Premier Pibulsonggram.

Army and navy forces fought an artillery duel in the streets of Bangkok.

No Americans Hurt
Some shells ripped through the American embassy, situated between opposing forces.

Apparently no Americans or other foreigners were hurt in a night of heavy fighting, said William T. Turner, American charge d'affaires.

As he made this report over the telephone to the Associated Press, a bullet ricocheted into his living room. It lodged in the wall over his head.

The army, air force and police joined in a fight against the rebellious navy.

Royal air force planes bombed navy headquarters, across the Chao Phya river from Bangkok at 8 a. m. today (8 p. m. Friday EST). One bomb fell between the French embassy and the Oriental hotel. Three persons were injured.

No attempt was made to bomb the warship on which Pibulsonggram was reported held prisoner.

Truce Plea Ignored
The premier, kidnaped by a navy patrol at a public ceremony Saturday, broadcast a plea for opposing factions to get together. His supporters ignored it.

Army and air force ultimatums were issued to the navy and marines to surrender. When they were ignored, tanks, artillery and planes opened up on the rebels.

The fight raged throughout the night into the morning. A pall of smoke hung over Bangkok from a burning oil pump set afire by an aerial bomb.

Turner said both sides must have suffered heavy casualties.

Louisiana Rice Bowl Gets Soaking Rains To End Long Drought

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Water pools stood in South Louisiana's rich rice fields today after 48-hours of rain ended a drought to save the $40,000,000 crop.

More than three inches of rain fell in some spots. It was really the first good rain in the rice bowl since April 1.

The rain began Thursday and fell intermittently through yesterday, turning dusty parched fields into black mucky pools of water.

Navigation on the intracoastal waterway was not helped immediately. The waterway is the main artery for East-West Gulf water traffic.

But Army engineers said they hoped additional rains would raise the level of the waterway. The water level stood at the barest minimum at which locks between the Mississippi river and Lake Charles, in the extreme southwest tip of the state, can operate.

Dead Under Car

HARTFORD—(AP)—The body of Oscar F. Norden, 24, was found Friday under a parked station wagon near the Hartford hotel. He had a crushed skull, fractured wrists and other injuries. Police said he apparently was a traffic victim.

Hangover Jumper, 386 Feet High, Nabbed In Detroit

DETROIT—(AP)—Harry Sandlin, a man with a hangover, today knew how it felt to get high—386 feet high.

But his spree could have been tragic. He drank a pint of whisky yesterday and climbed a 386-foot tower on the Detroit side of the famous Ambassador bridge.

And there, swigging away at another pint, he shouted defiance at maintenance men attempting to rescue him. Hundreds watched in horror below.

Bridge Foreman Bill Murphy, 50, was the first to get near the 24-year-old factory worker. "How about a drink?" Murphy asked. That threw Sandlin off guard. Murphy grabbed him. Earl Foley, 47, a bridge painter, also closed in. Together they subdued him.

Iran Oil Flow Cut To Trickle

By ROBERT B. HEWETT
TEHRAN, Iran—(AP)—Oil production in Iran slowed to a trickle today as the United Nations' international court started hearing the dispute between Iran and Britain over nationalization of Anglo-Iranian oil company properties.

Tehran was quiet after a noisy Communist-led demonstration yesterday denouncing American efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the future of the billion-dollar corporation.

About 10,000 persons had gathered in parliament Square shouting "death to Truman" and "death to Grady." Henry F. Grady is American ambassador to Iran.

Iran's normal outlet for oil—the AIOC tanker fleet for shipment abroad—is cut off because Iran insists skippers of the ships sign receipts saying they owe the new Iranian National Oil Company for their cargoes. The British captains have refused.

During this period of reduced production it is hoped that talks will be reopened between Iran and the company as Ambassador Grady has urged.

Japanese Surrender After Seven Years On Anatahan Island

GUAM—(AP)—Eighteen Japanese soldiers of World War II surrendered today to a U. S. Navy tug at Anatahan Island in the Marianas, convinced after seven years that Japan lost that fight.

The hold-outs stood at rigid attention as a rubber boat from the tug U. S. S. Cocopa neared the beach. They flew a surrender flag.

The 18, with ashes of dead comrades strapped to their backs, bowed a formal farewell to their island home, and stepped gingerly aboard the tug.

They will be taken to Guam and eventually repatriated to Japan.

Flood Loss Grows In Missouri, Kansas As Levees Crumble

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Crumb-

Marv's and Silver Lake in northeastern Kansas collapsed last night, spilling waters over 8,000 acres. Both dikes are along the state's greatest river—the Kansas.

Bridge Washed Away
The swollen river washed away another four-span bridge yesterday. Two spanning it were washed away last week.

In Missouri, the flooded area stretched across the state all along the Mississippi river.

South of Carrollton, about 60 miles east of Kansas City, the river was five miles wide as the result of a breach in a levee.

Transportation in both states has been curtailed. More than 30 highways and roads in Kansas have been cut by high waters. Sections of some 15 are blocked in Missouri.

In just one Kansas county—Pottawatomie—approximately 100 bridges were reported washed out in the last 15 days.

At Manhattan, flood waters of the Kansas river spread over a 50-block area of the town of 10,000.

Fighting Men Skeptical Over Truce Outlook

Danish Ship Picked For Negotiations

(By The Associated Press)
TOKYO—The United Nations invited the Communists to talk about a Korean armistice Saturday, but Red reactions were not encouraging.

There was no word of a reply from the Communist military commander early Sunday, more than 16 hours after Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway suggested peace talks.

Radio Attacks Continue
Official Chinese and Korean Red radios in Peiping and Pyongyang made their final broadcasts Saturday night without even mentioning Ridgway's proposal.

The government of India, which in the past has tried to mediate the war, did not share the optimism expressed in U. N. quarters. It did not say why.

The Moscow press published, without comment, General Ridgway's invitation to cease-fire talks aboard the Danish hospital ship Jutlandia.

Communist press and radio continued attacks on "American ruling circles." The Peiping radio urged intensified war efforts. Pyongyang radio published another war communique. Moscow radio quoted a North Korean demand that U. S. troops be barred from Japan after a Japanese peace treaty.

Conference At Wonsan
Moscow newspapers accused "American ruling circles" of trying to whip up new "anti-Soviet hysteria," and accused U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie of "incendiary noisemaking."

Lie expressed earnest hope of a "prompt and affirmative response" from the Communists to Ridgway's offer.

All available radio facilities in Japan and South Korea continued broadcasting the supreme U. N. commander's invitation to the "commander-in-chief of Communist forces in Korea."

It suggested a conference aboard the Danish hospital ship Jutlandia in the harbor of Wonsan, shell-shattered Communist port on Korea's east coast.

The Jutlandia transferred her patients to the American hospital ship Haven and awaited word to sail from the South Korean port of Pusan.

"We would go at a moment's notice," said Commodore Kai Hammer.

In Tokyo a high U. N. officer cautioned: "Folks ought to calm down a little. It's my guess that not a thing big will happen for hours, at least."

War As Usual
Troops along the relatively quiet battlefield were hopeful but skeptical.

Biggest battle action was another demonstration of Allied artillery might, under the glare of 8,000,000 candlepower searchlights.

The blazing lights caught about 800 Chinese preparing to attack northeast of Kumhwa on the central front. U. N. batteries cut the

Sick Malik May Quit Job In UN

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(AP)—Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik may eventually be replaced as Soviet chief delegate to the United Nations because of his recurring heart trouble.

This possibility was envisaged today in authoritative U. N. circles after it was learned that Malik actually was not feeling well in the last few days and was not putting on a diplomatic act to keep from talking to western delegates about his suggestion for a cease fire in Korea. He used a cane when he returned to the delegation house on Park Avenue and he was not his usual jovial self.

If Malik is recalled while he is home on vacation this summer, it will be because of his physical condition and not because of any dissatisfaction in the Kremlin with his acts in the U. N., these sources said. He expects to sail July 6 on a vacation of two months.

Malik apparently has carried out Moscow's order to the letter. He became known through the United States last August when he styled himself operation of the security council by a month-long attack on the United States and the war in Korea.

Sea Food Abundant

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sea foods will be plentiful throughout July, the Fish and Wildlife Service said today. The agency said that summer production of fish and shellfish will be at a high level during the month. Frozen seafoods in storage June 1 exceeded 100,000,000 pounds, six per cent above the same date last year.

Spot Of Oil Tells Story In Newspaper

KIMBALL, Neb.—(AP)—When Kimball county's first oil well was brought in this week the Western Nebraska Observer, Kimball's weekly newspaper, felt that mere words couldn't do justice to the news.

The publishers solved their problem by putting a spot of oil from the new well on the front page of each newspaper so subscribers could see for themselves.

Two Performances At 1 And 7 P. M.

Tommy Bartlett's famous Florida water skiing troupe will skim over the waves of Little Bay de Noc on Monday in two public exhibitions of the sport that has made Cyprus Gardens known throughout the world.

The two free performances, which are sponsored by the members of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 1 and 7 p. m., at either the Escanaba municipal dock or the yacht basin, depending on weather conditions. Each program will last one and a half hours. If the show is rained out, it will be presented the following day, Tuesday.

Radio Man Owns Show

The troupe is composed of several young men and women, who have been attending colleges in Florida. Bartlett, owner of the show, is well known to radio listeners for his Welcome Traveler program, broadcast from Chicago.

Although aquaplaning first cut the water of public attention in the '20s when Dick and Malcolm Pope took to the bounding board in Winter Haven, Florida, the water ski was unknown. It was not until 1929 that skis forsook snow for foam and it happened when some "Chasseurs Alpins," members of crack mountain ski troops were having a holiday at Lake of Annecy, near Lake Como in the French Alps.

Watching aquaplaners on the lake, one of the soldiers jokingly suggested: how about trying skiing behind that motor boat? Another retorted: "Chiche!" or "I dare you!" The dare was just what a daredevil needed to send him scurrying for wider and shorter skis than those used on snow. A rubber binding was devised and the water ski was launched. Not far away on the French Riviera at Juan Les Pins, the fashionables began floundering on skis in the Mediterranean. By the '30's they were standing upright with a minimum of spills and the sport was in.

Made Skis In 1936

Financier Jay Gould brought to America word of the wonder sport, the thrill of flying through the flashing waves at high speeds, little figures straining at rope as whizzing craft pulled them along in their wake. In these early days water skiing consisted merely of crossing and jumping the wake of the boat. But it caught on so widely that soon manufacturers started to produce skis and newspapers and newsreels found as a favorite subject the sight of Neptune's nephews and nieces streaking across the surface of water.

In 1936 the first commercial water skis were placed on the market and immediately seized upon by a sports-loving nation. Further impetus came in 1939 when French skiers demonstrated the sport at the New York World's Fair and the American Water Ski Association was formed. The first national tournament was held that year at Jones Beach State Park in New York City when the three events, slalom riding, high jumping and trick riding set the pattern for future competition.

The accent was on youth in 1947 when a boys' and girls' junior division was added to the national tourney. Since 1941 Pacific Coast championships have been held at Seattle and Lake Arrowhead and Dixie championships in Florida, as a highlight of the winter season.

Internationally, the sport is going at high speed with competitions held annually in Italy, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Great Britain.

From a dare the fabulous sport was born and all its host of fervent followers will dare you to say it's not the greatest thrill going.

Wallet With $102 Found, Returned

GLADSTONE—Additional evidence that most people are honest was revealed yesterday to State Police of the Gladstone post who reported that Larry Kocho of Green Bay had found and turned over to them a wallet lost at the scenic turnout on US-2 atop Whitefish hill.

The wallet contained papers identifying its owner as Bernadette Traynor of St. Ignace—and $102.23. State police are making arrangements to return the wallet and its contents to the owner.

Two In Hospital After Car Crash Near Wilson

Two persons were injured and a third driver escaped in a three-car accident at 3:40 p. m. yesterday on US-241 a short distance west of Wilson. Both of the injured today are reported in "fair" condition at St. Francis hospital in Escanaba.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Fred Kovach, 27, of Ashland, Wis., collided with an automobile driven by Orville Ibsen, 38, of 311 South Seventh street, Gladstone.

State police of the Gladstone post reported that Kovach sustained a jaw fracture and head and leg lacerations.

Ibsen was cut about the head and sustained body bruises. Both were given x-ray examination.

Kovach, traveling west on the highway, dropped a wheel off the edge of the pavement and in turning back careened across the highway and into the path of Ibsen's eastbound car. They collided almost head-on.

The third vehicle involved in the accident was a state highway department light truck driven by Joseph S. Marshal of Lansing, driving eastward behind Ibsen.

Marshal swung to the left in an effort to avoid the colliding cars, but the Ibsen car bounced into the side of his truck. Marshal was unhurt.

The accident was investigated by state police and Deputy Andrew Vecolani of the Menominee sheriff's department. The injured were brought to Escanaba by ambulance.

Dr. J. A. Hall, new director of the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., will be the principal speaker at the OWAA convention at St. Joseph's hall at 7 Tuesday evening. He also will address the Escanaba Rotary club at the Delta hotel Monday noon.

Joined Service In 1930
After several years spent in special research for nationally known fruit, feed, and tobacco firms, Dr. Hall was named in 1930 to the staff of the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, where he carried on biochemical investigations related to the production of turpentine and resin from southern pines.

He served from 1937 to 1939 as associate director of the California Forest and Range Experiment Station U. S. Forest Service, Berkeley, Calif. From 1939 to 1942 he was director of the Central States Forest Experiment station at Columbus, Ohio.

On Guayule Project
He moved to Washington in 1942 to become principal biochemist for the U. S. Forest Service. He served as consultant and technical advisor in biochemical phases of the guayule rubber project with field operations in Salinas, Calif., and was also engaged in developing the wood conversion and utilization programs of the Forest Service. He took an important part in bringing about the building of the $3,000,000 alcohol plant at Springfield, Ore.

In 1945 Dr. Hall became director of the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station in Portland, and on April 1 of this year was named head of the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison.

Dr. Hall is a member of the American Chemical Society, Society of American Foresters, and the Forest Products Research Society.

Alastair MacBain Among Writers At OWAA Convention

Alastair MacBain, outdoors magazine writer and chief information officer of the Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, D. C., is among the many well known scribe who are attending the OWAA convention here.

MacBain has been a writer and authority on conservation and the outdoors for 20 years. In 1935 he made the first of several country-wide surveys on the general subject of conservation—with primary emphasis on fish and wildlife—on assignment from The Saturday Evening Post. He has made five extensive survey trips to Alaska, one of them including the entire Aleutian Islands chain. He was among the first to study the newly discovered herd of sea otter at Ogligla Island, at a time when the northern sea otter was considered extinct.

Articles and Fiction
In the course of numerous wildlife-observing trips all over the United States and Canada, MacBain has been a regular contributor of articles and fiction to national magazines—including Collier's, This Week and True, as well as the sporting magazines. Many of his stories have been written in collaboration with Corey Ford.

During World War II, MacBain served with OSS and the air force, working closely with Army Public Relations. He held the rank of major at the end of hostilities in 1945.

Columbia Graduate
MacBain was born in Closter, New Jersey in 1908. After graduating from Columbia University, where he specialized in English, he immediately started freelance writing, his first assignment being for The Saturday Evening Post.

MacBain is married and has one child.

Sports Fishing Has Its Danger

Toll Twice That Of Hunting Accidents

Fishing is good for you, and so are the fish.

But take it a little easy; there are some things which can make fishing a dangerous sport, the State Health department told Michigan's would-be Izaak Walton today.

Lives of twice as many men and boys are lost in fishing accidents as in hunting accidents, according to a study reported by a national life insurance company in 1947.

Two-thirds of the fishing fatalities were drownings involving mishaps in small boats, the study found. Most of the other persons who lost their lives were drowned when they fell into water while fishing from a pier or bank.

Take Life Preservers
Don't get so excited about your fishing that you take out a boat which may leak, that you overload your boat, go out when a storm is coming up, lean too far out of your boat, stand up in your small boat, or try to change places with other passengers.

Small boats cannot be handled safely in wind, storm or rough water including the swell of larger boats. A person who goes out in a small boat should be able to swim, or else take an old inner tube or life preserver with him.

If your small boat should capsize, don't panic. Wait for it to come up. Get a hold on it and stay with it until help comes or until you drift ashore.

Those Weak Hearts
Watch your footing when fishing along banks, docks and piers. Watch out for deep holes and swift currents while wading.

A hat, long sleeves and long trousers will protect you from severe sunburn, sunstroke and mosquito bites. Take along a bottle of insect repellent.

If you are past the middle years, be careful not to overdo. Rowing and hauling in the big ones takes a strong heart. Don't drink lake or river water. Carry your own safe, cool supply. If you are bound to drink something stronger, drink it with your fish dinner, rather than enroute to your fishing spot or while fishing. Take it easy—coming, going and fishing. Your life is worth more to you than fish, tackle or time.

Michigan Extends Welcome To Outdoor Writers Of America

MICHIGAN is going all out to make the 1951 convention of the Outdoor Writers Association of America an outstanding success.

Nearly four hundred outdoor writers in the newspaper, magazine, radio and television fields are coming to Escanaba for the annual meeting, which opens today and will continue until Saturday night of next week. It is the longest convention in the history of Escanaba.

The Michigan Conservation Department, U. S. Forest Service, Michigan Department of Agriculture, and Chambers of Commerce of Escanaba, Manistiquette, Marquette, Munising and other Upper Peninsula cities are cooperating wholeheartedly in the project. They are furnishing guides and other services to make certain that the outdoor writers enjoy their stay in Michigan and find plenty of material for stories and radio-TV programs.

The Upper Peninsula will get a good break from the convention. Although the entire state of Michigan is playing host to the outdoor writers most of the activities will be confined to the Hiawahaland region above the Straits of Mackinac. The publicity and contacts that will be made by Upper Peninsula tourist and resort interests should bring dividends for many years.

But more important is the fact that Escanaba is entertaining a group of men and women who for years have been leading the fight for conservation. The outdoor writers have wielded their pens or typewriters day in and day out in campaigns against lake and stream pollution, menaces to game and fish, and the ruthless exploitation of the nation's natural resources.

They have done a fine job, and we hope they enjoy their visit to Escanaba and Michigan.

Iron Ore Centennial Will Be Big Event

OUR hats are off to Iron River and Stambaugh who are staging their Iron Ore Centennial celebration next week.

The Iron county communities decided to go out and raise big money for a celebration, and they have done it. More than $20,000 will be expended for various entertainment attractions, including a personal appearance by Tom Moore of Ladies Fair, a national radio network show on July 4, 5 and 6.

Iron county citizens have entered into the spirit of the occasion. For months, the men have been raising beards like the early day miners wore on the Menominee range. And the ladies are coming out in hooped skirts and ruffled gowns.

It's going to be a big homecoming event for the many Iron county folks, who are now scattered all over the United States and are always glad to come back home.

DELIVERED PRICES FOR STEEL (Wall Street Journal)

After nearly four years of controversy, litigation, legislation and one presidential veto, the Federal Trade Commission has agreed to close its complaint against the steel industry over the "basing point" system of quoting prices. Apparently any of the steel producers who care to do so may make delivered prices, though they may not refuse to sell f.o.b. mill.

Under the agreement the producers pledge themselves to respect the commission's dictum that they shall not contract among themselves to use any specific method of pricing. The industry has steadfastly denied the commission's assumption that the general use of basing point quotations, or delivered prices, indicated the existence among them of a conspiracy to restrain competition. If that is so, the industry will be free to return to the marketing customs which prevailed before the Supreme Court in 1949 substantially upheld the position of the commission.

Whether or when it will so return or not is not so clear. Its products are now being grabbed by avid consumers almost before they have cooled. In other words, steel makers don't have to compete for markets. When production overtakes demand, as it doubtless will within a year or so, they may be glad to return to a selling plan which they always insisted was rooted in far-reaching competition.

Frantic Fan

By Gordon Martin

Old McGinley was a man who liked to follow many sports, but the actions of officials always left him out of sorts. At a baseball game he loudly howled they ought to kill the ump, and the referee, in football, he derided as a chump. But at sports events McGinley now will never blow his stack, for he had a sad experience that cost him lots of jacks.

He was watching television at his home one quiet night, when upon the screen a wrestling match afforded quite a sight. In a far-off ring, two beefy men were circling 'round and 'round, and McGinley didn't like the way his favorite was downed. He protested to the referee, so many miles away, that the other guy was biting in a most illegal way.

But the referee refused to hear and dirty work went on, and McGinley's frazzled temper flared and very soon was gone. From his foot he pulled his shoe in rage and hurled it at the screen, and he scored a perfect bulls-eye which destroyed the TV scene. Now McGinley sure is busted flat in paying for repairs, and he's quiet as a little lamb at all the sports affairs.

MARTIN

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Senators are finding it novel and refreshing to have a newspaperman as a colleague. However, the new senator, Blair Moody of Michigan doesn't always follow the "club" rules, and some senators don't like it.

For instance, it's against the unwritten Senate code for one senator to expose another in a bald-faced lie. Yet that's what happened when Senator Homer Capehart, Indiana Republican, tried to vote with the meatpackers in secret, and pretend he was on the side of the housewives in public.

Under the "club rules," Capehart's colleagues would have excused this deception as politics and let him get away with it. However, Michigan's Moody was still too much of a newspaperman.

What happened is that Capehart voted behind closed doors to kill all price controls. Yet posing as the housewives' friend, he delivered a political speech on the Senate floor blaming President Truman for not freezing prices sooner.

"A situation has developed through an almost unpardonable sin on the part of the administration, because the administration did not freeze prices as of September 8 last year," proclaimed the Hoosier senator.

However, Moody had sat in the banking and currency committee when Capehart battled secretly against price controls. So he stood up and challenged:

"I should like to ask the senator from Indiana whether he feels now that it is advisable or feasible to remove all price and wage controls."

"I have never advocated it," blurted Capehart.

"Then why did the senator from Indiana vote to do so in committee a few days ago?" Moody shot back.

ON THE SPOT

"That is not correct," Capehart denied angrily.

"The senator from Illinois, Mr. Dirksen, made the motion to strike Title IV (price and wage controls) from the bill. The record shows that four votes were cast in favor of the motion. The senator from Indiana and three other senators voted in favor of the motion," reported the ex-newsman.

"Let us say for the sake of the argument that I did vote as the senator says," sputtered Capehart.

"Let us say the senator did, period," snapped Moody.

Then, in keeping with his newspaper training to double-check the facts, the Michigan senator phoned the committee clerk, and a minute later reported back to the Senate: "I have just consulted the clerk, and he says the vote was 8 to 4, and I remember very clearly that the senator from Indiana did vote for that motion. . . . The senator from Indiana held up his hand, and I think that was an indication of a vote."

"The senator from Michigan says that I held up my hand. I do not know why the senator brings up that matter on the floor, and whether it is necessary to have persons snooping to see whether a senator holds up his hand," fumed Capehart. "I wish to say that I do not like such tactics, and I do not think the senator should make such statements. I think it is out of order for him to do so."

"I do not believe it is out of order," retorted Moody. "Why should a senator's position on a matter of this importance be secret?"

DIPLOMATIC PIPELINE

Behind the peace talks—Reason Jacob Malik was so "sick" after his true proposal that he could not see U. N. diplomats was because he hadn't received instructions from Moscow on what to do next. Moscow had okayed his peace feeler but hadn't told him what the next move should be. So Malik was "very sick." (He would have been sicker if he'd made the wrong move. . . . Reason for President Truman's coolness toward the Malik proposal was a secret report he'd received that Communist China is training 1,000,000 men for a new Korean drive. The report told of conferences between Mao Tse-tung and the Russians at Mukden at which Mao argued that his troops were too lightly equipped, demanded heavy equipment, more planes and better training. As a result it was agreed to send 2,000 Russian airplanes to China. . . . The leak to Malik of the U. N. truce talks has now been traced to the Egyptian foreign office in Cairo. This was how Malik was able to scoop the U. S. A. and the U. N. with his true proposal. U. S. diplomats had been talking with U. N. diplomats for ten days about a truce plea to be made June 25, and word of the talks leaked to the Russians through Cairo.

Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Washington—Secretary Knox disclosed today that a new naval base in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska would be ready by September 1 and announced at the same time that bases would be established August 1 at Midway Islands and Trinidad.

Escanaba—A Diesel powered well drilling unit of the Layne Northwest company arrived here last night and will be set up between 18th and 19th streets and 15th and 16th avenues north to begin work on the third well in the city's new water system.

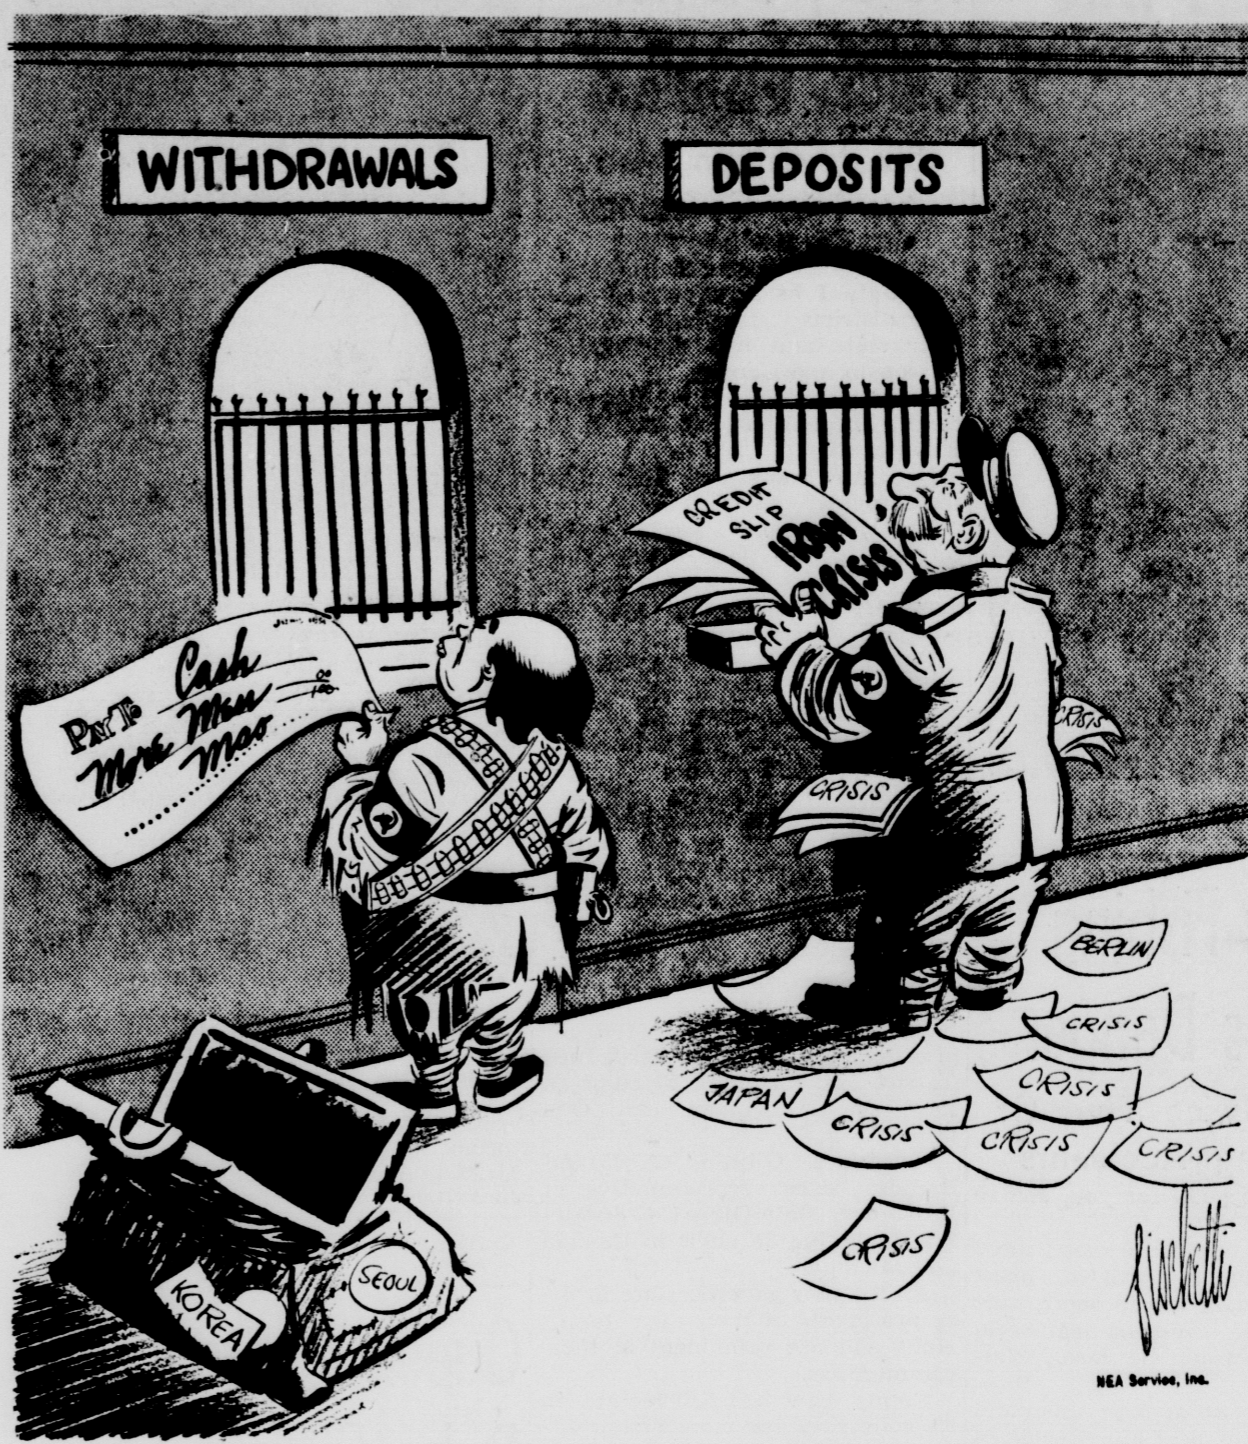

Manistique—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Ward will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today at their home, 135 South Mackinac avenue. They were married in Manistique in 1891 and have resided the entire 50 years of their married life in the same home.

Escanaba—A spinal anesthetic was given to Frank Voiselle, a patient at St. Francis hospital Monday morning. Mr. Voiselle, who has been suffering from varicose veins for several weeks, submitted to the operation. The anesthetic is injected in the spinal column and completely paralyzes the legs, making the patient immune to pain.

Manistique—Tuesday this city experienced its hottest day in four years or more. Intrenched in the heat wave which for the past several days has been sweeping the entire country, Manistique usually kept cool by winds off of Lake Superior or Lake Michigan, smeltered in an official temperature of 90 degrees.

Saga Of Bubbles, The Baby Sitter, And Father-Of-The-Year Kefauver

By PETER EDSON

Selection of Tennessee's crime-busting Sen. Estes Kefauver as "Father of the Year" has brought to light a baby-sitting story. It happened on a Sunday afternoon in the very hottest part of the Senate's crime investigation. Chairman Kefauver had come home for a quiet week-end after a particularly strenuous series of hearings. But three daughters and a son, and a dog and a constantly ringing telephone were too much for him.

So the Senator and Mrs. Kefauver decided to flee to the cool dark seclusion of a movie, where they could forget their troubles. And they called in "Bubbles" Stone, a 16-year-old neighbor girl, to babysit. As Mrs. Kefauver departed, she said the dog was down in the basement, and was due to have puppies at any time. If she—the dog—started to cry, give her this aspirin.

Father of the Year Kefauver and wife had no more than left the house when things began to happen. Telegrams arrived. A crate of oranges came as a gift from Florida admirers. Long distance wanted Senator Kefauver. The children—were children. And down in the basement, Mama dog brought four puppies into the world.

When Bubbles Stone got home that night, she admitted to her own mother that she had had about all the nature in the raw that she could take in one day. But she wanted to know how you made a dog take an aspirin? Mrs. Stone said she didn't know, but she supposed you put the pill in the dog's mouth, and then gave it a drink of water.

"I tried that," said Bubbles, "and it didn't work. I finally had to take an aspirin myself."

Dark Outlook for Veep

Vice President Albin W. Barkley came back on the job wearing dark glasses, following his eye operation. Photographers immediately pounced on him and asked him to pose. The Veep refused.

"If those pictures ever got out," he cracked, "people would say, 'There's that blind vice president. Where's his tin cup?'"

A Barkley by Any Other Name

One of the Vice President's first official duties on return was to extend honors to George Benjamin, Arkansas farmer, for his work on soil conservation. The man was accompanied by his nine-year-old son.

"What's your name, young man?" asked the Veep.

"George," said the boy.

"That's a good name," commented the Vice President. "A good common name. I wish I'd been named something like that. I was named for my grandfather, Albin. It's a good name, but people misspell it so much. They write to me as Albin, Allen, and sometimes as A. Barkley. Who wants to be just A. Barkley?"

Marshall Plays Hookey

Coming back from Korea, Defense Secretary George Marshall left Tokyo on a Monday. Next day, when he got to Alaska, it was still Monday, by reason of crossing the international date line going east. So, with an extra day that didn't have to be accounted for, the Secretary and his party went fishing for an afternoon near Nahnah, Alaska. General Marshall wouldn't tell what he caught. But Maj.-Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, the Army's new G-1, or general staff officer in charge of personnel, who went with Marshall, let the fish out of the bag. He said the Secretary got three or four little ones. General McAuliffe himself didn't get any.

Cussed Out From a 'Copter

Major General McAuliffe, who won fame in the World War II Battle of the Bulge by telling the Germans "Nuts!" when they asked him to surrender, brought back one complaint from Korea. He said that, since the advent of the helicopter, front line commanders have found that there was no longer any privacy on the battlefield. Division commanders hopped around in their helicopters, and gave the colonels and majors hell right on the ground if they weren't doing all right.

Let George Do It

The complete insincerity of the union labor leaders' walk-out from participation in the defense effort last winter seems proved conclusively now. The union leaders' complaint was that they were not being consulted at the top levels of defense planning. In February Defense Mobilizer C. E. Wilson asked the United Labor Policy Committee to name someone whom he could appoint to his staff. It was April before they picked George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Mail Clerks. It took him five weeks to report for work. But he was finally sworn in, early in June. Then C. E. Wilson announced Mr. Harrison had to go to a labor conference in Europe for a month. "When he gets back," said Wilson, "we'll roll out the red carpet."

Regardless, We're Hungry

Ashes to ashes and dust to dust.

Navy Lieut. William H. Evans, Jr., who got fired for writing letters criticizing Truman administration Far Eastern policies, didn't do so well on an interview in Washington.

"I wrote that letter with my oath of office propped up right before me," Lieutenant Evans boasted.

"Did you also have Navy Regulations before you when you wrote it?" asked a veteran war correspondent.

Later, Lieutenant Evans made a statement about not being able to stand it, seeing our boys dying in Korea.

"Did you see any action yourself?" he was asked.

He had to admit that he hadn't.

Italy To Use Wind To Help Meet Need For Electricity

By CESARE BRUSINI

AP Newsfeatures

ROME—Italy will ease its growing demands on electricity by using power stations operated by wind at a cost only one fourth of the present hydro-electric power. A large Italian metal works has bought the patents of Czech-born engineer, John Stastik.

The wind power stations operate through a number of small turbines. Regulators prevent the turbines from rotating too fast. This eliminates the inconveniences of windmills which had to change the inclination of the blades according to the wind's strength. Stastik's turbines can operate with wind of 10 feet per second.

Stastik tested his power stations in Libya, before World War II. He says one of his 1,000 kw. stations can produce some 620,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month with normal wind. The plant costs about $22,000. Operation and maintenance is calculated to cost under $8,000 a year.

The Stastik power stations system has been recommended to other Marshall Plan countries. Requests for information have been received from Britain and Argentina.

Stastik himself is now in Argentina, negotiating with the government for the sale of his plants. The Sicilian regional administration has ordered several. They will provide towns with electricity in the water-short area of western and south-western Sicily. Other stations will furnish electricity to villages in central Italy.

Good Evening . . .

By CLINT DUNATHAN

OF UNDERSTANDING—"Even under the best of working conditions the task of being a councilman is not an easy one."

So wrote Stuart A. MacCorkle of Austin, Texas, in the National Municipal Review. A professor at University of Texas, MacCorkle says that serving on a city council teaches how unprivate public life is—but he likes it.

A copy of MacCorkle's article was handed me by City Manager A. V. Aronson, who believes that city councilmen can be just as misunderstood in Escanaba, Mich., as in Austin, Tex.

For your information, and perhaps to arouse sympathetic understanding among our citizens, we present excerpts from MacCorkle's article.

MAXIMS OF MACCORKLE—A councilman soon learns that the people have an exaggerated conception of his duties and powers.

To many he is the one who should be able to ease every sorrow and right most wrongs.

If the councilman is politically ambitious, he must be fondly remembered as a man with a sympathetic ear and a big heart.

Being a good councilman and a good fellow at the same time is not easy.

The fact that the average citizen does not understand the principles of councilman government makes the councilman's job more difficult.

Mr. Citizen does not see why the man for whom he voted as a councilman should not personally see that his garbage is collected, his street paved, or Mrs. Jones' barking dog carried off to the city pound.

DIVIDING LINE—Relationships between the council and the manager always present problems.

If these relationships are to be harmonious, there must be an understanding attitude existing between the parties involved.

The council must realize that its true function is that of policy making, and the administration must hew to the line that its major function is that of carrying out policy as set forth by the legislative body.

Complaints coming to the council are generally relayed to the manager for disposal with a statement from the council member to the effect that if the complaint is not handled satisfactorily, the councilman will be so informed.

The manager serves, by and large, as the administrative head of the city.

THE CORPORATION—We are told that a member of the council in the council-manager form of government is in much the same position as one who serves on the board of directors of a large corporation.

It is the job of the board to determine overall policy.

The board members should not become so involved in minute details of their jobs that the more important long range problems of the company are neglected.

AND THE STOCKHOLDERS—The citizen has a big stake in his city government, and the big stick as well. He pays the bill.

Most of these citizens understand that if the council is to do what they desire, all must join forces and work together.

The intelligent citizen knows that the council is not there just to protect the real estate owner, the restaurant keeper, the merchant, the carpenter, the plumber or any other group in the community.

As a matter of fact, no such group ordinarily comprises a large enough group of voters to elect a candidate.

Sure, there are some drawbacks to being a councilman, but my brief experience would lead me to believe they are exaggerated. You lose a few friends; you will receive more complaints than praise—but what do you expect?

Take My Word For It . . . Frank Colby Jr.

WORDS TO WATCH

Heard on a television variety program: "Tonight we have with us Mr. —, who will give us an expose — uh, exposition, rather — o how to use the rod and reel."

The emcee was wrong in both attempts. The word he was hunting was exhibition, or demonstration.

Expose is a word meaning "exposure; a revelation of something discreditable," as The paper carried an expose of crime in the city.

Exposition is a somewhat happier choice than expose in the sentence, but it has too broad a meaning to apply accurately here. Literally, an exposition is a public show, as of industrial machines or appliances; and in an even more general sense, we speak of the International Exposition; the Chicago World's Fair, or Exposition; the Crystal Palace Exposition.

The word the emcee should have used, of course, was exhibition, "a public display of feats of skill."

San Fernando? Can agenda be used as a synonym for itinerary?—Old Timer.

Answer: I'm afraid not, Old Timer. An agenda is a detailed list of things to be done; a program consisting of such items; a memorandum of business to be brought up at a meeting; as, agenda of the peace conference; agenda for a convention.

Agenda is pronounced: uh-JEN-duh. An itinerary is a course to be pursued in traveling; a route to be followed on a journey. Be sure to give the word five syllables, thus: eye-TIN-AIR-ee.

The word gauche, meaning "clumsy, awkward, gawky," is not pronounced "goe-SHAY," as I sometimes hear it. The word entered English from the French, and its English pronunciation is very similar to the French. Say: gosh.

Frank Colby's leaflet, C-8, will put you right about the use of the end-of-sentence preposition. For a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Frank Colby, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, New York.

Writer Of Tales Of Far North Attends Meeting

Charles E. Gillham, author of tales of the Far North, will participate in the Brotherhood of Jungle Cook ceremonies at the OWAA convention picnic on Wednesday evening at Ludington park. He also will preside at the Group B workshop meeting at the Delta hotel Monday morning.

Gillham worked for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service for about twenty years. Thirteen years of this time was devoted to the hunting of predatory animals in Arizona and the West. These consisted of mountain lions, stock killing bears, wolves, coyote and bobcats.

He made nine trips in the Arctic of Canada and Alaska working on waterfowl and big game research. Several trips were made into Mexico and Central America on such biological investigations.

Gillham has written three books and many stories and articles for American outdoor magazines during the past 25 years. One of his recent books was titled Raw North.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Gillham did postgraduate work at the University of Wisconsin and Iowa State College. He is married and has two teen-age children—a boy and girl.

Gillham belongs to the Explorers club, Arctic Institute, is vice president of the Outdoor Writers of America, and is a member of several other scientific institutions.

Michigan, which achieved her best forest fire record in history last year, so far this year is doing the next to impossible with the help of one of the most intensive prevention campaigns ever waged.

The record established last year, the nation's outdoor writers learned here today, was only 5,390 acres blackened by 839 fires. The 1949 toll was 21,108 acres by 1,224 fires.

So far this year Michigan conservation department forest firemen have limited 464 fires to 3,449 acres damage. According to Milton M. Bergman, state forest fire chief, this is a little better than the record-breaking pace underway last year at this time of 546 fires and 3,954 acres burned.

Not Like Old Times
 Bergman points out that "the 1950 record is in marked contrast to several other scientific institutions.

At the present time Gillham is attached to the division of public relations of the Olin Industries, manufacturers of guns and ammunition.

State Had Best Forest Fire Record Last Year

Michigan, which achieved her best forest fire record in history last year, so far this year is doing the next to impossible with the help of one of the most intensive prevention campaigns ever waged.

The record established last year, the nation's outdoor writers learned here today, was only 5,390 acres blackened by 839 fires. The 1949 toll was 21,108 acres by 1,224 fires.

So far this year Michigan conservation department forest firemen have limited 464 fires to 3,449 acres damage. According to Milton M. Bergman, state forest fire chief, this is a little better than the record-breaking pace underway last year at this time of 546 fires and 3,954 acres burned.

Not Like Old Times
 Bergman points out that "the 1950 record is in marked contrast to several other scientific institutions.

At the present time Gillham is attached to the division of public relations of the Olin Industries, manufacturers of guns and ammunition.

to several thousand fires which gutted over 2,000,000 acres in 1871," the first year records were out. He says the meager notes on forest fires prior to 1871 "indicate thousands of acres under fire."

Many, he adds, were land-clearing fires which got out of control.

Carrying on with the intensive campaign started last year to make the public fire conscious, the Michigan conservation department again is getting the co-operation of newspapers, radio stations and state sport magazines. Over 300 state newspapers alone are keeping the fire problem before the public, some with special editions as well as reminders. Theaters and television stations are helping with the job.

Public Education
 Fire warning posters have been placed in public places and some merchants have window displays. Conservation officers are talking to school children in the spring and fall and department forest fire films are being screened at meetings of sportsmen's clubs and other organizations.

The importance of fast suppression of the fires which actually do get started has not been neglected in 1951 plans. More FM radio sets have been installed in fire lookout towers. Another new fire equipment station now is in operation. All primary lookout towers are manned and repair and replacement of fire-fighting equipment is kept up to date. Newer types are being designed and tested at the Roscommon forest fire equipment station, one of the most unique stations of its type in North America.

Conservation firemen also have the aid of a relatively new state open fire law which is being rigidly enforced. The law specifies that a burning permit is needed as soon as the snow leaves the ground, creating general hazard conditions.

Bergman warns in conclusion that the person who flips a cigarette out the car window is the biggest menace. The brush or debris burner who kindles a blaze he cannot control is not far behind on the dishonor list.

The Fostoria

Offers Choice Of Floor Plans

Rooms Five
Bedrooms Two
Closets Six
Cubage 17,300 ft.
Dimensions 35' x 25'

In both the regular and alternate plans, the protected front entrance opens on a good sized hallway. There is a large coat closet in the back wall of this hallway in the regular plan.

To the right, off the hallway, is the 17' x 11'4" living room. A large fireplace, centered in the right wall of the room and flanked by good sized windows, adds to the decorative appeal of this spacious family gathering spot. Another good sized window in the front wall admits further light and provides good ventilation.

Well Planned Room

Furniture arrangement should present no problem whatsoever in this living room, for the doorways are very conveniently placed. The long unbroken sections of wall both at the back and at the right of the room can easily accommodate large furniture pieces. Near to the fireplace is a natural location for a grouping of chairs, etc.

To the left off the hallway is the 9' x 7' den. Well lighted and ventilated by the one window in its front wall, this room can easily serve as a combination den and library by having built-in book shelves installed along the walls.

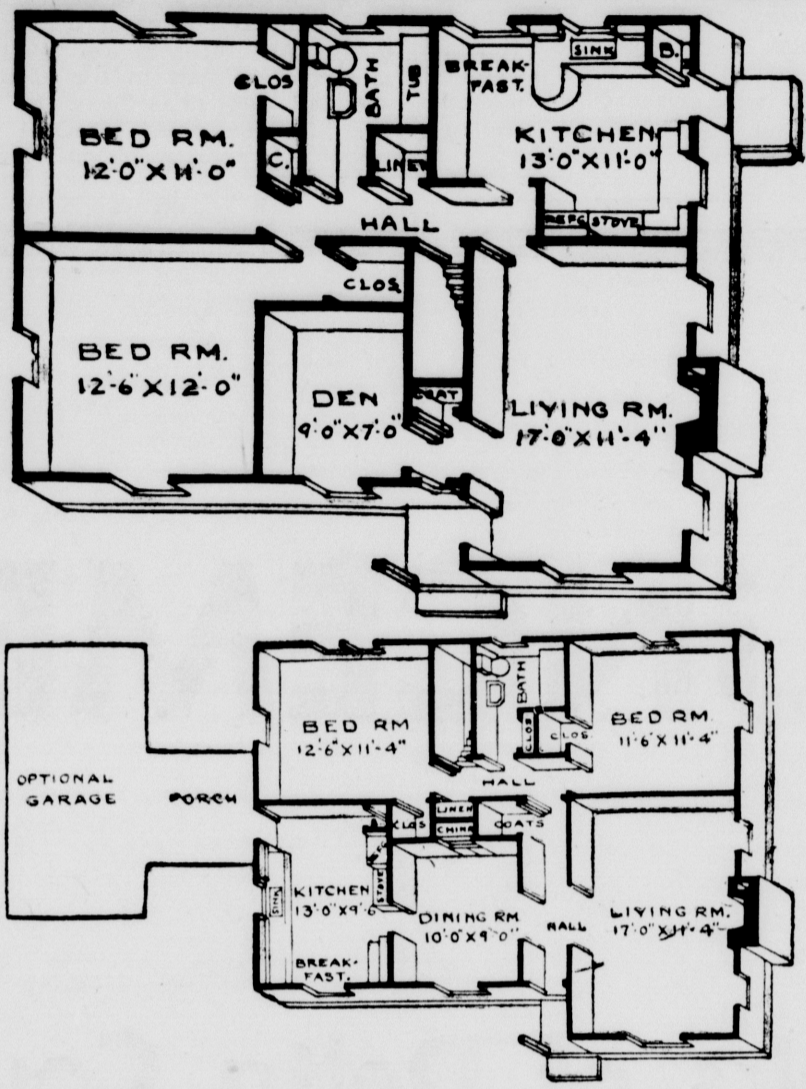

Every inch of kitchen space is put to a useful purpose and yet the room is not cluttered or overcrowded in appearance. Refrigerator, stove and working counters line the front and right walls in that order while the sink, additional working counters and a spacious broom closet are located against the back wall.

One window in the right wall and two in the back provide good light and cross ventilation for the kitchen of "The Fostoria." Occupying the left section of the room is the comfortably large breakfast nook.

Also opening on the hallway, just beyond the bathroom, is another closet which can be used for any household storage purpose. Good cross ventilation and light is guaranteed in the back bedroom by the one window in the back wall of the room and another window in the left wall.

Whether you prefer the regular or alternate plans depends to a great extent upon whether you'd rather have the kitchen in the back or front of the house and whether or not you want a regular dining room in your home. The living room remains the same in both plans.

However, in the alternate plan the entry hall leads directly to the connecting hallway. There is a very spacious closet in the further section of the left wall. To the left, off the hallway, is the 10' x 9' dining room.

Garage Optional

The door in the left wall of the kitchen opens on the attached porch-way and the optional garage. A porchway and garage can be included with either plan—the decision is entirely up to the home builder. If you do not want to have the porch and garage constructed at the time when you have your home built, they can easily be added at some later date.

Both bedrooms are located in the back of the house where they are furthest away from street noises etc. A connecting hallway joins the two bedrooms and the bath.

Two windows in the back wall and one in the left wall provide good light and ventilation for the left bedroom. Measuring 12'6" x 11'4", this room is designed to serve as the master bedroom and contains a spacious clothes closet.

Exchange Vows

Miss Shirley Mae Mattson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Mattson of Cornell, wore traditional white slipper satin for her wedding this afternoon to Alan J. Sanville.

The vows were spoken before the Rev. Gustav Lund in a double ring candlelight service at four p. m. in Bethany Lutheran church in Escanaba. Red and white roses, mock orange blossoms and peonies formed the altar decorations.

The gown was designed with a high neckline, tapered sleeves and a bustle back skirt which extended into a court train. A crown of orange blossoms secured her veil of illusion. She carried white lilies and pink and white snapdragons. Her only jewelry was a three-strand pearl necklace, the bridegroom's gift.

She was given in marriage by her father who escorted her down the white carpeted aisle.

Bridal Aides

Miss Laverne Bucklund as honor attendant wore pink taffeta with a net overskirt and Mrs. Warren Rose, bridesmaid, wore yellow taffeta and net of similar style. They carried bouquets of harmonizing colors and wore fresh flowers in their hair. Marilyn Mattson, young sister of the bride, who was flower girl, was dressed in white organdy over blue and she carried a miniature bouquet.

David Campbell was best man for Mr. Sanville, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sanville, sr., of Cornell. Warren Rose was groomsmen and Clifford Mattson and Robert South seated the guests.

Mrs. Mattson wore a blush pink crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow flowers for her daughter's wedding. The bridegroom's mother wore black crepe with a shoulder bouquet of red roses.

Miss Ann Hendrickson who was soloist of the service sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Don Aronson, organist, played the bridal procession and recessional.

Betti Sviland,
John J. Besson
Married Today

Velvety in French violet and seafoam green gowned the young women who attended Miss Betti Mari Sviland at her wedding this afternoon to John Joseph Besson. The gowns were styled with drooped shoulder lines and high shawl collars which extended over the shoulders to a wide V neck. The waistlines were close fitting and the three-fold bouffant skirts extended to the floor. Open crown large-brimmed horsehair hats, shorty gloves of nylon and single strand pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride, completed their attire. Miss Joyce Neumeier was maid of honor for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sverre Sviland and Mrs. Lois Johnson Lindstrom was bridesmaid. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow roses and snapdragons with matching satin ribbons.

Little Christina Beauchamp was the flower girl. Her dress was of soft lilac taffeta extended to the floor. She wore a Bo Peep bonnet and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and snapdragons.

Victorian Gown

The bride's gown of imported white Chantilly lace over French tulle and satin was of Queen Victoria design with a highly starched collar, V neckline, snug, pointed bodice, tapering sleeves and a full length train. Tiny covered seed buttons extended down the back of the bodice. A seeded pearl Victorian crown held her finger-tip veil of nylon tulle in place.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and snapdragons entwined with bow knots of white satin ribbon centered with an orchid.

At 2 o'clock the bride was escorted down the white carpeted aisle of Immanuel Lutheran church by her father where the vows were repeated in a double ring ceremony before the Rev. Johannes Ringstad. Tall standards holding creamy white, gladiolus, pale pink peonies, white snapdragons and greens adorned the altar. Mrs. Rosalie Peterson Tonn, soloist of the service, sang "Because" when all of the guests were seated and "O Perfect Love" when the couple knelt at the altar.

Mrs. Noel Piche, organist, played the traditional procession of Wagner's "Lohengrin" and the recessional, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Besson had James Piche for his best man and Leo LaCrosse as groomsmen. Marty Sviland, brother of the bride, and Lloyd Lindstrom were ushers.

Mrs. Sviland watched her daughter's wedding from a front pew in a navy blue sheer crepe dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was white roses. Mrs. Besson chose a beige and leaf green print with green accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Home Reception

The reception for 250 guests was held from 3 to 6 at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were decorated in the colors of the wedding, white, orchid and green. Flowers and tapering candelabra decorated the white linen covered table, and in the center was the three-tiered wedding cake with miniature bride couple, encircled with white snapdragons and feathery greens. Mrs. John Greis, jr., and Mrs. Michael Kuchenberg presided. Miss Louise Walker served the punch and Mrs. Ernest Erickson, the wedding cake.

The newlyweds' honeymoon destination has not been disclosed. For traveling the bride will wear a navy suit of summer weight gabardine with navy and white accessories and an orchid. They will live in an apartment at 115 North 13th street.

The rehearsal dinner was held last evening at the Log Cabin. Walleye Pike Fishing Trip On Bay de Noc

START OF TRIP—Fred Johnson, 306 South Fifth street, Escanaba, adjusts the outboard motor to the boat at the Masonville dock, preparatory to walleye pike fishing on Little Bay de Noc.

Dick Duchaine, 14, of 1906 Eighth avenue south, brings some of the equipment.

JACK HOOKS ONE—J. M. (Jack) Rottier of Milwaukee, field representative of the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., was the first to land a walleye. As he pulled him in, Dick caught him in the net.

ONLY A CLAM—Mentorally, Dick thought he had a walleye on his line. He pulled up a clam and looks at it scornfully. He quickly consigned it to the waters of Bay de Noc.

HERE'S PROOF—About two hundred boats were fishing for walleyes at the time. John Nicholas and Ray Shaw, Escanaba teachers, passed by in their boat, and Ray raises his fist to prove they can be caught.

Garfield Assassinated 70 Years Ago Monday; McKinley 50 Years Ago

By RAY HENRY
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Charles Guiteau decided the president of the United States must die.
So, 70 years ago Monday—July 2, 1881—he shot James A. Garfield as the president was walking to a train which was to take him on a vacation.
Leon Czolgosz decided too that the president of the United States must die.
It was 50 years ago this summer that he shot William McKinley at Buffalo, N. Y.
Both assassins were executed.

Train Trip Planned
The summer of 1881 started out like many Washington summers—hot and humid. To get away from it President Garfield planned a two-week train trip through New England.

The president was jaunty and pleasant as he and Secretary of State James G. Blaine rode down sunny Pennsylvania Avenue toward the station.

As they climbed from their carriage the president asked a guard the time. It was 9:20 a. m. The train was to leave at 9:30.

Garfield, with Blaine at his side, walked casually through the main entrance of the station and into the ladies' reception room, which led to the train platforms.

Route Unguarded
At the other end of the room, near the exit, stood Guiteau. The caution surrounding activities of present-day chief executives didn't exist then. Except for a few policemen the president's route through the station was unguarded.

When the president reached the center of the room Guiteau fired his first shot. It struck Garfield near the left shoulder and spun him around so that a second bullet hit him in the back, just over the left kidney.
The president slumped to his knees and fell face downward. Several passers-by grabbed him as Blaine attempted to head off the assassin.

Desperately frightened, Guiteau ran towards first one door and then another. This gave police the chance to catch him.

Doctors kept Garfield at the station until about 10 a. m., and then moved him to the White House. Ten weeks later, on Sept. 19, he died at Elberon, N. J., where he had been taken to recover.

"Sad Necessity"
At the police station Guiteau readily admitted he had shot the president. Police found a note in his pocket which read:

"The president's tragic death was a sad necessity, but it will unite the Republican party and save the republic x x x I had no ill-will towards the president x x x I am a stalwart of the stalwarts."

Ever since Garfield's inauguration this 39-year-old son of a bank cashier had frequently—and futilely—waited in a White House office to see the president about an appointment to the consulship in Paris.

Persons around the White House thought him a little strange. His father called him insane.

Even so, many who knew Guiteau never suspected he had ill feelings for President Garfield. He had frequently given speeches recommending the president's reelection, and he had been a long-time Republican. Many thought that not getting the foreign post planted the seed of assassination in his mind.

There is little doubt, however, that the killing was premeditated. For Guiteau was recognized when he arrived at the police station.

He'd been there a few days earlier "to see what sort of quarters I would have to occupy." At the same time he was seen inspecting the galleys from which he was hanged almost exactly a year later.

Bandage Hides Gun

It was Sept. 9, 1901. President McKinley was visiting the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. He agreed after an official request to shake hands with some of the public.

He was to stand in the center of the "Temple of Music," with the people entering one door, coming down an aisle, shaking hands and going out another door.

Police were scattered throughout the building, and the president was flanked by two secret service men.

At about 4 p. m., the doors opened. In line was a rather tall, boyish looking man with his right hand bandaged. The man was Leon Czolgosz, 25. In the bandage hand Czolgosz held a gun.

As he reached the president Czolgosz extended his left hand. The president offered his right. Before their hands met Czolgosz fired two shots point blank. A bullet deflected one bullet, the second struck McKinley in the stomach.

The president reeled and was caught by his secretary. The secret service agents knocked the gun from the assassin's hand and pounced on him so roughly that he was badly cut on the face.

Dies In 8 Days

McKinley was taken to the home of the superintendent of the exposition. Eight days later he died.

Czolgosz at first refused to give his right name. Later he did so and said he was an anarchist from Cleveland.

He said he shot President McKinley because he believed the "present form of government is unjust and the most effective way

Band To Help In Dedication

Harbor Is Readied For Nat'l Roleo

The Gladstone high school band under the direction of Paul Cowen will participate in the opening ceremony at the National Roleo on the morning of July 4, it was announced yesterday.

The band, headed by the Legion colors and guard, will march to the harbor Wednesday morning where at 10 there will be a short service marking the 175th anniversary of this nation's independence.

The service is to consist of playing of the Star Spangled Banner, raising of the flag and reading of the Declaration of Independence.

William Klein is chairman of the committee arranging the service.

The harbor is being prepared for the roleo. City workmen under the direction of Carl Haglund are getting the platform into place in the harbor and bleachers are to be erected along the eastern side of the harbor on the roadway.

Harbormaster Clyde Cole asks persons having boats anchored in the harbor or moored along the eastern edge of the harbor to make arrangements by Tuesday to moor the boats in the outer harbor until after the roleo.

Low Merwin To Head Tribune

Former Resident Returns To City

Lewis J. Merwin, former resident of Manistique, arrived here this week from Detroit to succeed Robert J. Kline as manager of the Tribune Publishing company. Merwin took over management of the printing and publishing firm yesterday.

Kline, who has managed the company since last October, has been recalled to military service as a major of infantry.

Merwin, a native of Manistique, began his newspaper career here on the old Courier-Record, published by the late Benjamin Gero I. He later worked for the Pioneer-Tribune when the Courier-Record was absorbed by that newspaper.

He was employed for a time here as manager of the Manistique bureau of the Marquette Mining Journal, and he later served that daily in Munising and Ne-gaunee.

In 1931 he returned to Munising as editor of the Munising News, remaining with the News until 1947 when he took the position of secretary of the Munising Chamber of Commerce. In 1948 Merwin went to Dubuque, Iowa, as assistant state editor of the Telegraph-Herald. For the past year he has worked as an advertising salesman in the Detroit metropolitan area, holding positions on the Hazel Park Palladium, the Wyandotte Tribune and the Dearborn Guide.

Wells Is Credited With Developing New Art By Combining Two Of Oldest

Charles A. Wells, journalist, editor and cartoonist, who appears at Manistique during the week of July 29 under the sponsorship of the Manistique Ministerial association, is being credited with the development of a new dramatic art by effectively combining two of the oldest. His technique combines drawing skill and persuasive speech, both talents highly cultivated through years of training and professional experience.

For many years Mr. Wells has drawn and written for numerous American newspapers and periodicals, many of which still use his work regularly. Since 1941 he has also been editor of Between the Lines, a widely read laymen's information service or newsletter. In the meantime he has become familiar to audiences in universities, colleges and churches for his unusual dramatic presentations of words and pictures from the platform. A speaker of great natural force and an experienced professional artist, he illustrates his presentations with large color cartoons, drawn as he speaks. One metropolitan daily recently said of him, "We know of no instance in the history of the American stage or platform where such a combination of talents has appeared so effectively in one individual. Line, color and words are used with a power and artistry that leave one highly entertained yet most deeply moved."

Beginning first as a sports artist and sports feature writer, covering major athletic events throughout the country, Mr. Wells entered afterward a period of editorial work, writing and drawing editorial cartoons. Later, special assignments took him abroad frequently as a feature writer.

Through his repeated travels in the troubled areas of the world, he became increasingly interested in the spiritual significance of the struggles prevailing everywhere. He was soon sought for by many organizations as a special speaker to interpret the picture of the world today from the spiritual standpoint—an approach for which there seems to be an increasing hunger and demand. This led to the organization of his Conferences on Christ and World Need which have become one of the most successful community religious programs in the country.

The local program will be held in Manistique high school auditorium.

Who Said Revolution?

Those who talk revolution today are pikers compared to the boys of 1776. That WAS a revolution—the biggest political upheaval in all history, completely changing the concept of man in his relation to government.

The philosophy of these words struck with titan blows at the foundations of tyranny:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness . . . that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed".

With Ray Crandall

Take it from Bill Ranguette, Escanaba's roving scout for the Chicago White Sox, the Upper Peninsula brand of baseball compares favorably with that of the western states. . . Bill is currently in the midst of a two-month scouting trip to the West Coast and dropped us a line yesterday from Battle Mountain, Nevada.

Bill reports that he has seen the best they can offer on his trip, and although the boys out there can play baseball the year around, they don't rate any better than the best back here in the U. P. . . Proof that others who should know feel the same as Bill can be seen in the signing of Russ Hiltonen of Escanaba and Dick Zeratsky of Menominee by major league scouts in the past week. . . We haven't had a report from Oshkosh on Russ yet, but he should be breaking into the lineup soon. . . They figured he would be ready for action in four or five days when he left here Tuesday morning.

We're taking these baseball results around here as they come, so we won't guarantee the standings in today's issue. . . As far as we can tell, we've got most of the results from last Sunday. . . If not, we can't help the situation a bit.

July 8 will be a red letter day in Bark River. . . That date will mark the second meeting of the Escanaba Bears and Manager Leo Knauf's Bark River team in the Tri-County league. . . Escanaba handed Bark River its lone loss in eight games to date and the two teams are currently tied for the loop lead. . . Bark River will be looking for a scalp next time out, you can be sure of that.

Incidentally, that Bark River 1-0 win over Hermansville Thursday night was the second this season for the Knauf-men. . . They turned the same trick against Foster City in the delayed protest game. . . In addition to those two narrow squeaks, Bark River has nudged Wallace 3-2, Stephenson 6-5 and Perronville 2-0.

Bears At Hermansville Sunday In Tri-County

Birdseye	0	4

Teams of the Oldtimers' league are scheduled for only one game next week because of the Fourth of July activity in the middle of the week. Delta Frame is not scheduled because it is their turn to receive a bye.

The complete schedule follows:

Friday—St. Joe vs. Clairmont Transfer at Memorial Field at 7:00; Daily Press vs. Birdseye at Memorial Field at 8:30; St. Thomas vs. Eagles at Royce.

Faced with a pitching problem to fill the vacancy created by Russ Hiltonen's absence, the Escanaba Bears will travel to Hermansville tomorrow afternoon in a Tri-County league clash.

Manager Phil Brazeau announced today that the Bear starting pitcher will not be named until shortly before game time.

The Bears will be battling to retain their share of first place in the standings. The Bark River nine moved into a top rung tie last week by edging Hermansville 1-0 in a makeup game.

Workout Tonight

Manager Brazeau indicated that some lineup changes may be made for Sunday's game. He has been toying with the idea of moving Dean Bailey to second, Ed Gauthier to short and Tom St. Germaine to first with Charlie Camps in the outfield.

He said a practice session will be held this afternoon starting at 4:30. It will continue until 8:30 so that players who are working may join the workout when they are able. The team will leave for Hermansville from Beck's store tomorrow at 1.

Mel Sandrin, Hermansville's veteran right-hander, will no doubt be called on again to face the Bears. The Sunday slate of games marks the end of the first round play.

Bark River Home

Bark River is host to Wilson, one notch out of the cellar. Manager Leo Knauf has nominated Dale Erickson, recent Bark River-Harris high school graduate, to start against Wilson.

Perronville and Foster City, tied for fourth in the standings, will hook up at Foster City in a battle to remain in the top division.

Other games will have Daggett at Stephenson and Wallace at Powers.

No Names Travel To Gladstone On Sunday

The No Name softball team of the Escanaba American League will invade Gladstone tomorrow night for an 8:30 lighted class with the Bungalows, it was announced today.

No Names will be seeking revenge for an 8-5 loss to the Gladstone team here last week. Bob McCarthy and Angie Hirn will be the No Name battery with Gene Verhamme and Michaud going for Gladstone.

One fourth of a human being's nervous energy is said to be used by the eyes.

Cowboys Take Over On Softball Field Tonight

The first big-name exhibition softball attraction of the season will be offered here tonight when the Oklahoma Cowboys take on the Harnischfeger Red Sox at Memorial Field.

The Cowboys will also present a half-hour pre-game Western show billed as tops in entertainment. Included will be a pantomime of "Casey At The Bat" and blindfold shooting exhibition by Colonel Rikli, manager of the team.

The main game will be played at 9, following the pre-game show. An attractive preliminary at 7 will bring together White Birch and Paper Mill in a makeup American Softball league game.

Milwaukee S-Ball Champs To Play Two Games Here

One of the fastest softball teams in the Milwaukee area will appear here in a double exhibition next week against the Harnischfeger Red Sox.

The visiting team is also a Harnischfeger aggregation, Milwaukee brand, and its record in two Milwaukee leagues is absolute tops. The Milwaukee Harnies are currently leading the Shorewood Triple-A league with five wins and one loss and also top the Milwaukee County Softball league with five wins, no losses.

The club carries two pitching artists, Charles Roth, undefeated in seven starts, and Mike Swieczak, who has five wins and one defeat. The team has played and won two exhibition games in addition to its regular league schedule.

Marquette Star

One of the stars with the team is Pancho Palesse, former Marquette great, who holds down third base. Palesse is knocking the ball at 420 this season, tops on the team.

Manager of the club is Less Hafemeister, former pitching great. Hafemeister has piloted Harnischfeger to two championships each season for the past three years.

The Milwaukee Harnischfeger team will meet first Tuesday night at 8:45 under the lights at Memorial Field. The second meeting will be at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, July Fourth.

Gladstone Has Doubleheader

Both Games On Road Sunday Afternoon

Team	W	L

Ishpeming	1	0
Marquette	2	2
Gladstone	1	2

GLADSTONE—Although according to schedule, the Gladstone Redskins have an open date Sunday, they actually will play a double-header against Republic and Ishpeming in an effort to catch up with their schedule which has been curtailed by rain.

The players will meet at the city hall at 10:30 Sunday to start for Republic. The first game will be at 1 and then the team moves on to Ishpeming for a battle with the Hematites at 4:30.

Both Ishpeming and Republic have played but one league tilt to date. Ishpeming walloped Marquette, 10-2, while Republic lost to Munising, 8-7.

The Redskins this week lost an able member of their roster when Larry LaPlante went out to the Dakotas to work for the Soo Line. However, they gained two veterans who rejoined the team, namely Jim Kennedy, a first baseman, and Art LeGault, who played considerable shortstop for the team in past years.

Jim LaLonde has been selected as the starter against Republic while either Bill Sundling or Pete Sarasin will work against Ishpeming. Bob Ritter and Dick Pilon are the catchers. Others making the trip include Dwight Arneson, LeRoy Jacobson, Ray Alworden, Lloyd Forvilly, Lowell LaPlante, Dick Rasmussen and Neil Sinclair.

Dodgers Find Clinkers In National Pennant Waltz

Last night's 3-2 defeat by the Phillies sounded the alarm bell.

Face Giants

Panic is not the word for a club with a 4½ game lead. But by dropping five of their last six, the Dodgers let the pack loose in. If they don't right themselves over the weekend, their lead actually will be in danger in the July 4th series with the Giants.

The runnerup Giants, rained out of a night game at Boston, picked up a half game when the Phils knocked off the Brooks behind Robin Roberts' five-hit pitching.

Maybe Manager Eddie Sawyer had the right idea when he read the riot act to some of his too-complacent Phils. For the first time since May 12 the 1950 champs are up to the 500 mark, eight games behind Brooklyn.

Snider Homers

Ralph Caballero, a utility infielder usually used as a pinch runner, came through with a triple—his first extra base hit of the year—to win the game in the ninth. Caballero's hit plus Del Wilber's two-run homer in the fifth were just enough to offset home runs by Jackie Robinson and Duke Snider. Erv Palica was the loser.

St. Louis and Chicago struggled through nine innings for a 6-6 tie in a game called to let the Cubs catch a train for Cincinnati. Be-

MANISTIQUE—A strengthened Perkins nine, bolstered with several players from the former Nahma team, will take the field here Sunday afternoon against the Manistique Cardinals.

Top recruit from Nahma is Newhouse, who will do mound duty for the visitors.

Cardinal Manager Fred Lesica reported today that Don Carlson will get the starting hill assignment for Manistique, with Clyde Strasser catching.

The Manistique nine, leading the Bay de Noc league since its defeat of Cooks last Sunday, will be out to tighten its grip on first place. Perkins, with two wins and two losses, is expected to provide rugged opposition, Lesica said.

The game is called for 2:30 at the fairgrounds diamond.

The Cardinals will play an exhibition game here on July 4 against the Plucky Cubs, one of the top nines in the Upper Peninsula Central league.

Cubs Nip All-Stars By 3-2 Score Here Friday

After tying the score with a two-run rally in the top of the ninth, the Detroit American Legion Junior all-stars fell apart in the last half of the inning and bowed 3-2 to the Escanaba Cubs here yesterday afternoon.

The Cubs sent two runs across in the second inning when John Martinac, third baseman, laced a single along the third base line to score Tippy Larmay and Jo-Jo Johnston. Larmay was on with an error and Johnston had walked.

Chriske Scores

Two singles and a double produced the pair of all-star runs in the first of the ninth, Sealy and Hay scoring. Jack Chriske, Escanaba relief pitcher, scored the winning run from second when Kaminsky, all-star catcher, over-throw first base following Paul Gunderman's sacrifice bunt. The all-stars committed three successive errors in the inning.

Southpaw Fred Boddy checked the all-stars with two hits up until the ninth. He fanned eight and issued one walk and got in trouble in the ninth when Hay led off with a double and Tituskin singled.

With one out and two on, Chriske came in to halt the rally. He fanned two men and allowed a single before the side was retired.

Martinac paced the Cubs at the plate with a single and a double.

Hollywood Pitcher Is Eyed By Yankees

HOLLYWOOD—(P)—The New York Yankees' chief West coast scout, Joe Devine, has recommended that the Bronx Bombers buy Hollywood's star left-hand pitcher, Artie Schallock, for $50,000.

The 26-year-old Schallock's contract is owned by Hollywood under terms of an old Hollywood-Brooklyn working agreement, so the Dodgers can pick him up at the end of this season for $10,000.

Brooklyn reportedly has agreed to accept $40,000 cash for its claim on Schallock, the remaining $10,000 going to Hollywood.

White Sox Pilot Worried Even If His Pitchers Win

CHICAGO—(P)—The White Sox pitching staff is manager Paul Richards' biggest problem and he worries about the performance of his pitchers even when they win.

Richards wasn't entirely satisfied with the job turned in last night by Howie Judson in a 10-3 Sox victory over the St. Louis Browns. The win allowed the Sox to continue atop the American league standings, a half game ahead of the New York Yankees.

Judson, one of the handful of Sox veterans on this year's trade-filled roster, won his third victory of the season. He hasn't lost any so far, but his appearances have been irregular.

Wasn't Close

"Sure we won," Richards said, "but what if it had been a close one? Howie looked shaky in spots out there the first six innings. If we hadn't jumped off to a big lead, we might have been in trouble."

The young manager indicated

Tardy Lawmakers Work Saturday On U. S. Money Bills

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Because Congress has been tardy in its annual job of supplying funds to operate the government, both the House and Senate were called into unusual Saturday sessions today.

Pending was an emergency money bill supplying funds to operate all government units, including Congress itself, for the month of July.

Senate and House leaders hoped to iron out minor differences on this stopgap measure during the day and then rush it to President Truman for signature before midnight opens a new fiscal year.

Veteran Senator McKellar (D-Tenn), chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee, slashed through red tape late yesterday to push the emergency measure through its committee and then the Senate.

Involved is perhaps some $5,000,000,000, the first month's portion of the government's estimated 1952 cost of between $60,000,000,000 and $70,000,000,000.

College Draft Tests Given 81,000 Today

WASHINGTON — (AP)—More than 81,000 students are expected to take a test today that may determine whether they'll be deferred in the draft.

Selective service will conduct its third college qualification test at 1,036 centers throughout the nation.

These scoring high enough can be deferred while attending college. It's up to their local draft boards, however, to pass on deferment claims.

Some 271,799 students took the two previous tests. A fourth and final test will be held July 12, chiefly for students whose religious beliefs prevent them from taking the test on a Saturday.

New U. S. Ambassador To Ireland Says He Has Broad Assignment

OMAHA — (AP)—Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews said his new appointment as ambassador to Ireland is a broader assignment than the title implies.

Before leaving for Washington yesterday Matthews told reporters at the Omaha airport the new post calls for him to be the President's representative on the continent of Europe, the Omaha World-Herald said.

He left before reporters could press him for details and in Washington a White House spokesman said there would be no comment on his statement. The appointment needs Senate confirmation.

Fjetland Estimates Auto Layoffs Will Idle Only 45,000

LANSING — (AP)—Layoffs in Detroit's automobile industry are a serious problem although reports of the numbers are exaggerated, members of the defense production council were told here yesterday.

O. K. Fjetland, director of the employment service of the Michigan Employment Security Division, estimated that by the peak next month there will be between 32,000 and 45,000 auto workers jobless.

Published reports citing figures as high as 200,000 have been including General Motors workers on change-over vacations, Fjetland said.

Syrup Kiln Raided By Luce County Bear

NEWBERRY — (AP)—Mrs. Ryan Henke heard a brushing noise against the wall of the Henke home at Halfway Lake at 2:30 a. m. Thursday. She awakened her husband. He looked out the window. A 450-pound bear, with a well fed look stared back at him. The bear disappeared before Henke, clad in his pajamas and carrying a gun, could pick up the trail. Henke later found the reason for the animal's contented look. It had raided his maple syrup kiln.

The DC-6, last heard from at 1:46 a. m. (Mountain Standard Time) was one of the first UAL planes to go back in service since pilots of the line called off their strike yesterday.

The search was concentrated for a time five miles east of Loveland, Colo., and later turned north to Wellington, 75 miles north of Denver, after farmers told of hearing a plane in distress.

However, police and airlines officials emphasized the reports could not be confirmed.

Farmer John Uhrich near Loveland first reported to the state highway patrol he heard what sounded to be a plane crash.

Search craft circled over the farm and vicinity until one newspaperman said it "looks like Air Force day up here," but there was no sign of the missing transport.

Later, William Coy, a farmer near Wellington, reported hearing a plane, apparently in trouble, over his place about 5 a. m. Mountain Standard time.

Wellington is only about 30 miles south of Cheyenne, Wyo., where the plane reported it was overhead in the last message from it.

Searchers headed for the Wellington area, which is in flat farming and grazing country.

Fighting Men Not Excited By Truce Outlook In Korea

Ridgway's bid was regarded as a dramatic challenge to the Communists for a showdown on peace. His message stated:

"As commander-in-chief of the United Nations command, I have been instructed to communicate to you the following:

"I am informed that you may wish a meeting to discuss an armistice providing for the cessation of hostilities and all acts of armed force in Korea, with adequate guarantees for the maintenance of such armistice.

"Upon receipt of word from you that such a meeting is desired, I shall be prepared to name my representative.

"I would also at that time suggest a date at which he could meet with your representative. I propose that such a meeting could take place aboard a Danish hospital ship in Wonsan harbor."

Shelled For 134 Days
Wonsan is on the northeast coast, about 80 miles north of Parallel 38. An Allied force landed there last fall in the drive to the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria.

Red China's entry into the bloody conflict forced abandonment of the port. United Nations warships began shelling it when the Reds re-entered, and kept up the bombardment 134 days through Friday.

It was the longest bombardment in U. S. naval history.

An armistice would bring to a halt a bloody war that began slightly more than a year ago.

Communist casualties since the June 25, 1950, invasion of South Korea through last June 20 were estimated at 1,185,465. Of those, 860,300 were killed or wounded in battle, 163,061 were taken prisoner and 162,103 were non-combat casualties.

United States casualties through June 22 were reported at 76,749, including 12,670 dead and 10,680 missing.

Primary School Fund Gets $3,341,162.52

LANSING — (AP)—The state's primary school fund was richer by $3,341,162.52 today. A check for that amount was paid yesterday by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., covering the company's half-year payment of its state property tax. The full-year tax of $6,682,325 is an increase of $600,000 over last year, the company said.
